Phase-Out of D120h

This Portfolio Bulletin is to inform you that, due to manufacturing issues related to longer delivery of the CPU and other options, NEC has decided to discontinue the D120h 1U and D120h 2U model earlier than expected. NEC recommends that any and all sales that are in the qualification process and or in need, must be ordered no later than September 30th, 2020.

We are excited to inform you, that beginning of Q4 CY2020 you will have the opportunity to consider our new HCI Appliances as a possible replacement to the D120h. These new appliances are based on the latest technology and therefor better adapted to the fast moving IT landscape. Furthermore, our HCI solution should meet all your end-user's future requirements for Data Center infrastructure and more. Last but not least, it will provide you, as an NEC partner, with greater margin and better competitive capabilities as well. So stay tuned for our new HCI appliance servers announcement.
